

Words from the editor

Diego Aponte Martín, MD<sup>1</sup>

OPEN ACCESS

Citation:

Aponte D. Words from the editor. Rev Colomb Gastroenterol. 2020;35(3):265.

<sup>1</sup> Editor and director, Revista Colombiana de Gastroenterología.

Received: 02/09/20

Accepted: 03/09/20

Dear Readers: In issue 3, volume 35 of our Journal, we would like to invite you to visit our journal's website <https://revistagastrocol.com/index.php/rcg>

There, you will be able to check the journal's contents and find relevant information, as well as articles available for all our readers. Moreover, you will find that some changes have been made in our website, since we have been working hard on functional and design improvements. All this has been done with the purpose of making the submission process easier, considering that all articles will be subjected to a thorough editorial process.

As you will see, the website is now more friendly and even entertaining, and articles, both in Spanish and English, will be available for reading. As for the submission of manuscripts, for the benefit of authors, reviewers and editors, this process will be only done through the paper submission site, which you will easily find at the top of the portal. This information will be supported by the Open Journal System (OJS) management and publishing system.

Regarding the current issue, you will find again the editorial comment. On this occasion, the editorial has been written by one of the committee's editors, Dr. David Paramo, who analyzes the importance and difficulty of clinical prediction in choledocholithiasis and pancreatitis. Furthermore, you will find seven original works of great interest, as well as reviews of topics useful for daily practice, and some very rare case reports.

On behalf of the Journal, we hope you enjoy this new issue and do not hesitate to send us your comments and academic exchanges of knowledge.

 Video